New York (New Netherlands) Colony and Long Island

Cohen, Paul E. and Robert T. Augustyn. Manhattan in Maps: 1527-1995. New York, New York: Rizzoli International Publications, Inc., 1997. Web.

In addition to providing a large number of historic maps of Manhattan, this book also provides a thorough history of Manhattan from early colonization to the twentieth century.

Egloff, Nancy. "Christmas in 17th-century England and Virginia," Jamestown Settlement. 2010. Web.

This article, by an early colonial historian at the Jamestown Settlement historical site, was invaluable in describing the Anglican Christmas traditions of the 17th century.

Elson, Henry William and Kathy Leigh, translator. "New Amsterdam," History of the United States. New York: MacMillan Company, 1904. Web.

This well footnoted history of the colony of New Amsterdam is a good general history of the colony.

"Explore New Amsterdam Interactive Map," Mapping Early New York, New Amsterdam History Center, n.d. Web.

This site took the Castillo 1660 map of New Amsterdam and made 3D recreations of streets, canals, buildings and landmarks, providing a step back in time to see what the town would have looked like at the time.

Fried, Marc B. The Early History of Kingston & Ulster Country, N.Y. Marbletown, Kingston, NY: Ulster County Historical Society, 1975.

This source provided the historical context for this story, including pertinent events, descriptions, and family histories.

Gardiner, Jonathan T., Jonathan Baker, Joseph S. Osborn, Eds. Records of the Town of East-Hampton, Long Island, Suffolk Co., N.Y., with Other Ancient Documents of Historic Value., Vol. 1. SAG-Harbor, N.Y.: John H. Hunt, Printer, 1887. Print.

This source included numerous important documents that detailed events, laws, rulings and judgements important to the community in which Abraham Dayton lived and to his story.

Garrison, Trey, "America's Aristocrats: Gardiner's Island," The Land Report. November 1, 2007. Web. Accessed 12/10/2025.

This article provided some good background information on Lion Gardiner, Gardiner's Island, and his relationship with the local Native Americans and colonists.

Hedges, Henry P. "Address on June 12th, 1890," Addresses at the Celebration of the 250th Anniversary of the Village and Town of Southampton. Sag Harbor, NY: John H. Hung, Publisher, 1890. Print.

This source provided the layout and description of the early town of Southampton, including the church, its services, and the people living there.

Jacobs, Jaap, The Colony of New Netherland: A Dutch Settlement in Seventeenth-Century America. Ithaca, NY: Cornell University, 2009. Print.

This source provided background information necessary for planning and outlining this book.

Jameson, J. Franklin, Ph.D, L.L.D, Ed, Narratives of New Netherland 1609-1664. Berwyn Heights, MD: Heritage Books, Facsimile Reprint, 2016. (Original printing: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1909.) Print.

The source includes several reprinted and translated primary sources on the English attack on New Netherlands, which were used in writing the scenes on this subject. Specifically, I used the account of the English encroachments upon Long Island in translation taken from the Hollantze Mercurius of 1664 (pp 411-412), the Letter from The Rev. Srisius to the Classis of Amsterdam (September 15, 1664) to the Reverend Learned and Pious Brethren of the Rev. Classis of Amsterdam, (pp.414-415), Letter of the Town Council of New Amsterdam, 1664 (pp. 451-453), and Report on the Surrender of New Netherland, by Peter Stuyvestant, 1665 (pp. 458-466).

Sublett, John Louis. Staten Island: A Walk Down Memory Lane. CreateSpace, January 28, 2009. Kindle Book.

This book provides a convenient timeline of important events affecting Staten Island and some information on prominent people associated with the island. It also provides a valuable listing of books on Staten Island.

Tantillo, L.F., A Moment Past: L. F. Tantillo Paints New York History. Nassau, NY: L.F. Tantillo, Fine Art, 2014. Print.

Tantillo, L.F., The Edge of New Netherland. Nassau, NY: L.F. Tantillo, Fine Art, 2011. Print.

Len Tantillo's artwork is historically researched and provides an invaluable visual record of what Manhattan and the mainland of New Netherlands (present-day New York) would have looked like in the 17th century.

Whitehouse, Jack. Fire Island: Heroes & Villains on Long Island's Wild Shore. Charleston, SC: The History Press, 2011. Print.

The stories in this book, helped to paint a picture of what life was like on Long Island. It also provided more information on the "royal fishes," or drift whales, that were claimed by the governors of Long Island, but whose laws the colonists resisted.

Wunderlich, Roger Ph.D., "Lion Gardiner: Long Island's Founding Father," Transcript of Lecture Delivered on March 14, 1998. Print.

This article provided some useful background information on Lion Gardiner.

Sailing and Maritime History

Anderson, R. C. The Rigging of Ships in the Days of the Sprintsail Topmast, 1600-1720. New York, New York: Dover Publications, Inc., 1927. Print.

This is an excellent resource for researching the technical details of rigging a variety of English, Dutch, French, Portuguese, and Spanish ships during the indicated time period. There is also a useful illustration of the English Merchantman, 1673.

Colbert, David, Ed. "A Slave Ship in the South Atlantic, May 24, 1829, Robert Walsh," Eyewitness to America. New York, NY: Vintage Books, 1998. Print.

This primary source article described the treatment and conditions slaves endured on the Atlantic crossing.

Dolin, Eric Jay. Black Flags, Blue Waters: The Epic History of America's Most Notorious Pirates. New York, NY: Liveright Publishing Corporation, 2018. Print.

Exquemelin, Alexander O. and Alexis Brown, Translator. The Buccaneers of America. Mineola, New York: Dover Publications, Inc., 1969. Print.

The book discusses the English, French, and Dutch buccaneers of the Caribbean.

Jeans, Peter D. Seafaring Lore & Legend: A Miscellany of Maritime Myth, Superstition, Fable, and Fact. International Marine/ McGraw Hill, 2004. Print.

This book also includes maritime history, nautical customs, descriptions of life at sea, information on the Press Gang and types of ships.

Lavery, Brian. Ship: The Epic Story of Maritime Adventure. New York, New York: DK Publishing, Inc., 2008. Print.

This is a good general resource with a wealth of visual images.

Paine, Ralph D. The Old Merchant Marine: A Chronicle of American Ships and Sailors. iBooks, n.d.

This book is well researched, including a detailed and lengthy annotated bibliography.

Whaling

Ashley, Clifford W. The Yankee Whaler. New York: Dover Publications, Inc., 1991. Print.

Dolin, Eric Jay. Leviathan: The History of Whaling in America. New York, NY: W. W. Norton & Company, 2007.

Lloyd, John Bailey. Eighteen Miles of History on Long Beach Island. West Creek, NJ: Down the Shore Publishing and The SandPaper, Inc., 1994. Print.

While this book is primarily about the history of Long Beach Island, which is in New Jersey and is not the subject of my story, it includes a good history of early off-shore whaling and provides drawings of the methods used and photographs of the tools and boats used by these early whalers. The methods and tools would have been similar for Long Island New York, where off-shore whaling began in the American colonies.

Sanger, C.W., A.B. Dickinson and W.G. Handcock. "Commercial Whaling in Newfoundland and Labrador to 1900," Newfoundland and Labrador Heritage Web Site. 1997-2020. Accessed 1/21/2020.

Schmitt, Frederick P. Mark Well the Whale!: Long Island Ships to Distant Seas. Port Washington, NY: Kennikat Press, 1971. Print.

Schmitt, Frederick P. Whale Watch: The Story of Shore Whaling off Nassau County, New York. Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., New York: The Whaling Museum Society, Inc., 1972.

Originally published in Nassau County Historical Society Journal, Vol. XXXI, Nos. 1-2, 1971. Print.

This is a valuable source for providing specific information on events and orders affecting the whalers on Long Island. It also includes drawings and relevant primary sources and references to other sources.

“Shinnecock Nation’s Ceremony for the Great Whale,” Fox5NY.com. Fox 5 News New York, March 12, 2019.

This article was useful in describing the Whale Ceremony for the beached whale. There was also a short video with the article that showed the modern Shinnecock man performing the blessing ceremony.

Strong, John A. “Indian Whaler’s on Long Island, 1669-1746,” Long Island History Journal. Stony Brook, NY: Center for Global & Local History, Stony Brook University. Accessed 1/21/2020.

Strong, John A. America’s Early Whalemen: Indian Shore Whalers on Long Island, 1650-1750. Tucson, AZ: University of Arizona Press, 2018. Print.

Both the article and the book by John A. Strong provided a great deal of information on early offshore whaling and the transition from Native American whalers to colonial whaling companies that continued to rely upon Native American whalers.

“When You Celebrate July 4, Thank a Whaler,” The Whaling Museum & Educational Center. Cold Springs Harbor, NY: June 29, 2018. Web.

Witchcraft in Long Island

“Before Salem, There Was the Not-So-Wicked Witch of the Hamptons,” Smithsonian Magazine, October 25, 2012. Accessed 11/17/2025.

This article provided additional information on Lion Gardiner and John Winthrop, Jr. that was valuable in painting a picture of these leading men.

“Connecticut Historical Society Collection, Vol. XXII: Records of the Particular Court of Connecticut 1639-1661, Hartford, 1928,” pp. 188-189.

Dewan, George. “Goody Garlick: Witch-hunting was not limited to Salem, Massachusetts in the nascent America of the seventeenth century,” New York Archives, Fall 2005. Accessed 11/17/2025.

This article was invaluable in recreating the events surrounding the inciting event, hearing, and trial of Goody Elizabeth Garlick. I used the direct quotations from the article as quoted from the “Connecticut Historical Society Collection” and the “Records of the Town of East Hampton”. The article cites that “All the direct quotations used in the article were copied verbatim from the records of the hearing and trial, although archaic language has been modernized.”

Garrison, Trey. “America’s Aristocrats: Gardiner’s Island,” The Land Report, November 1, 2007.

This article was informative in providing background on the Gardiner family and their plantation on Gardiner’s Island.

King, Hugh R. & Loretta Orion, PhD. “It Were as Well to Please the Devil as Anger Him,” Witchcraft in the Founding days of East Hampton, Transcript of Lecture Delivered May 9, 1998.

This transcript provided much of the background and many valuable quotes from the hearing and trial records of Elizabeth Garlick’s case, along with analysis of the period with explanations of the beliefs and practices of the Puritans living at the time. I could not have written about this event without this informative document.

Milner, Richard. “How the Witch Trial of Goody Garlick Shook a 17-Century Town,” History. N.d. Accessed 11/17/2025.

Rattiner, Dan. “Goody Garlick: The True Story of the Woman Tried for Witchcraft in East Hampton,” Dan’s Papers, 11/01/2012. Accessed 11/17/2015.

This article provided a lot of information about the events precipitating Elizabeth (Betty) Howell’s death and the timeline of events. It provided additional details and quotes not found in the Hugh King & Loretta Orion transcript.

“Records of the Town of East Hampton, Long Island, Suffolk Co., N.Y., With Other Documents of Historic Value.” Long Island Collection of the East Hampton Library.
